Bugle Band Captures Ontario Championship

Win Title On Saturday And Have Triumph On Tuesday

R. S. A. Bugle Band won the championship of Ontario at the Orange Protestant and Flute Band Association competitions at Sunnyside, Toronto, on Saturday.

The local band won both class A and class B events. The full band of 45 boys competed in class A, gaining 87 points, against 83 for Canadian Corps Signals and 77 for Toronto Sea Cadets.

In B class, open to boys 20 and under, the Newmarket band had 36 boys. They had no competition in this class, but were awarded 88 points and won permanent title to the cup for three successive years.

The R. S. A. Bugle Band, trained for marching by Jack Hallam, Newmarket, and James Bradford, Toronto, and for playing by Mr. Bradford, scored another triumph in Toronto on Tuesday. Engaged by Sentinel L. O. L. 2928, the band won the acclaim of the crowds all along the Orange walk route.

The forming of a cross, a manoeuvre executed by the band several times, the boys moving into cross formation on the march, was enthusiastically applauded each time.

They left Clinton St. at 10 a.m., arriving at Queen's Park at 11 a.m. and the exhibition grounds at 1 p.m. They formed a cross at the Toronto cenotaph, played "Lead Kindly Light," and saluted the cenotaph.

In addition to a truck to carry the drums, the boys had a touring-car with hood down, to carry the trophies they have won. Thomas Palmateer drove this car. With him were J. O. Little, ardent friend of the band, and Clyde Adams, mascot.

The band was led by W. E. Andrews and Roy Rhinehart. Frank Smith, the third leader, was unable to be present.

Although they took part just as musicians engaged for the day by a lodge, it was a proud day for the buglers. They are already engaged for the warriors' day parade for the C.N.E.

KILLED INSTANTLY

Thrown 20 feet into the air when an acetylene torch exploded, Jack English, 40, Keswick, was killed instantly at Balfour Beach at 9.35 a.m. D.S.T. today.

The body was mutilated beyond recognition. Another workman was only four feet away but was uninjured. A Mr. Cooper also witnessed the accident.

Dr. F. G. Pim of Keswick was called but could do nothing.

The body was removed to Sutton, where Dr. Pim performed an autopsy. Dr. J. C. R. Edwards, coroner, was called, and stated that there would be an inquest.

The cause of the explosion was undetermined. He was welding a water tank.

Mr. English was a garage operator, and has a brother and father at Queensville in the same business. He was married, and leaves a wife and four sons, ranging in age from one and a half years to 14.

L. H. Bovair Takes Honors
For Delphinium Blooms

There were 70 entries. President James Gibney and the executive were extremely pleased with the interest taken in the show.

L. H. Bovair "cleaned up" in the delphinium classes. The delphinium entries were lovely. Mrs. Ed. Brammer was without competition in the sweet pea classes. She made a clean sweep with firsts for all her sweet pea entries. These flowers were beautiful.

Play-Offs
Start Monday

Playing their third game in as many days, the Newmarket softballers defeated the Aurora club by a 20-15 score at the Sturt St. school grounds on Wednesday evening.

Newmarket scored three of their runs by the home run route, Smith, Peters and Cunningham hitting circuit clouts. All of the Redmen went on a hitting spree, Smith, Hilton and Burkholder getting three hits apiece. Giles, Brammer, Tunney and Peters each hit safely twice.

This game completes the schedule and puts the Newmarket club in first place with nine wins and three losses. Richmond Hill finished in second place with eight wins and four losses.

The play-offs commence on Monday evening of next week at the Sturt St. school grounds with the Redmen playing hosts to the Richmond Hill club.

Barns Burnt, Trees Uprooted By Storm

Damage Estimated At $10,000 Suffered By
C. Wright

The worst electrical storm in the memory of residents swept across Cook's Bay, causing untold property damage and uprooting hundreds of trees in the distance between Pine Beach and Roche's Point, last Friday afternoon.

The gale, which lasted only about ten minutes, resembled a small cyclone. Had it lasted much longer, residents believe every building in its path would have been damaged.

Lightning struck a straw stack in the yard of Clarence Wright, just north of Queensville, which in turn ignited two large barns and two implement sheds. Three calves, one bull, five pigs, 80 hens, 135 chickens, a number of ducks, 25 tons of this season's hay, 250 bushels of last year's wheat, 200 bushels of last year's oats and a quantity of corn recently purchased were lost in the blaze.

In addition a quantity of tools and a windmill were burnt in an implement shed. Only the cement foundation of the large barn remains. Mr. Wright said his total damage at more than $10,000, with no insurance.

Mr. Wright is married, and has one son and daughter at home. The house, a short distance from the barns, was unharmed.

A short distance north of Wright's, a huge tree fell in I. Waldon's front yard, just missing the house. Many other trees along the fence rows and in fields were uprooted or struck by lightning.

A giant maple tree fell on the cottage at Pine Beach, which was occupied by Mrs. Jack Taylor, Buckingham Ave., Toronto. The roof was smashed, and Mrs. Taylor, her nine-year-old daughter, a maid, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Robinson, Newmarket, who were sitting inside, escaped without a scratch.

The leverage of another tree lifted the cottage where Mrs. Gordon Chalmers, her infant daughter, and friends from Montreal were sitting at dinner, ten feet in the air.

MANION CHOICE SEEN AS MOVE TOWARD UNITY

Understanding Of French People Gained At Ottawa

Need for greater understanding of each other by different language and geographical groups in the country was one of the principal impressions gained by local citizens who attended the National Conservative convention in Ottawa.

"Two thousand people sat down to dinner on Tuesday night," Mayor L. S. J. Boyd, a delegate, told The Era. "We were told that this was the largest body ever to sit down together for dinner in Canada."

"The dinner was held in the horticultural building at Lansdowne park, and the convention sessions were held in the Coliseum building. The delegates sat in the centre and the spectators sat in the galleries."

"There was a general feeling of optimism concerning business conditions. It was a great experience to meet with people from all over Canada and to get their viewpoints."

"The only discouraging note was from Mr. Herdridge. When he spoke, all the resolutions were passed and it was too late to do anything about them. A few people said 'boo' but he wasn't noticed very much."

"There was a committee of 80 men who studied the railways and unemployment problems."

Asked if he agreed with the convention plank that the railways should be unified, Dr. Boyd said that if he had the settlement of the problem, he would give Sir Edward Beatty the responsibility of making the railways pay, with due provision that nobody should be thrown out of employment.

"We are told that the natural retirement of men would soon

Specialty Observes Golden Anniversary

Company's Products Used In Every Office In Dominion

This year marks the golden jubilee anniversary of the Office Specialty Manufacturing Co., whose factories and head office are located in Newmarket.

The company first began business in Toronto in a very small way in 1888, just 50 years ago, and in this time has had a wonderful growth until now it is the largest concern of its kind in the British Empire.

Following the opening of the original store in Toronto, stores were later opened in Montreal and Winnipeg, and within the next few years arrangements were made to locate the factory in Newmarket.

The original factory building has grown considerably over a period of years, large additions having been made in 1911, 1913 and 1929.

There are now "Office Specialty" of Canada from coast to coast, and in addition to these stores, travelling salesmen cover every town and city in the country.

In addition to the country-wide business done in Canada, the company also makes and exports equipment to most of the British Empire countries throughout the world.

The local industry is referred to by most people locally as the "Specialty," but few people have any realization of the kind of goods made. Just a brief idea, over 3,000 lines of stock goods are carried, and in addition, hundreds of articles in steel, paper, and wood are made specially to order.

The Office Specialty Mfg. Co. Ltd. really combines three separate lines of business.

Merits Of Bracket And Standard Lights Debated

Orillia Street Impressive,
Newmarket Citizen
Reports

Orillia's new system of bracket street lights has wonderfully improved the appearance of the street, Dr. R. L. Hewitt told The Era this week.

The Era has run articles recently on Orillia's new bracket lights, erected to save street and sidewalk space, and believed by Orillians to be superior to standard lights.

Dr. Hewitt did not see the Orillia lights at night, but thought that the Orillia lights would be well worth inspection before any action is taken in Newmarket. He said that bracket lights were possible only where there was a regular line of buildings.

C. C. Rachar, town electrical engineer, told The Era this week that he intended to see the Orillia lights, and also new street standard lights in Bowmanville and Milton before making any recommendations about Newmarket lights.

Mr. Rachar questioned whether Newmarket buildings would support bracket lights. He also said that in the event of a fire, some of these lights might go out of action.

"I still have an open mind on the subject," Mr. Rachar said.

At 82 Years Daniel Hilts Still Uses Hammer And Saw

Would Not Be Working Now
Were He Farmer, Craftsman Says

One of Newmarket's oldest still active workmen is Daniel Hilts, Timothy St., who celebrated his 82nd birthday on Tuesday of last week.

Mr. Hilts is a carpenter by trade and not only does furniture repair jobs in his own workshop but still goes out on jobs.

Born near Victoria Square, where his grandfather came from Pennsylvania, he worked with his father on the farm until he was 25 years old. But even before he was 20 he had done quite a bit of cabinet work and it seemed to come naturally to him.

He decided to go into carpentry and learned his trade in Markham with Helse Bros., staying there four years.

Forty-seven years ago, leaving him three years short of a golden anniversary, he married Jessie Chapman of Richmond Hill, whose parents had come to this country from England.

Mr. Hilts lived in Stayner, where he built his own house, for some years, and then came to Newmarket about 30 years ago.

He is a Liberal and a member of the Brethren in Christ, although in Newmarket he and his wife usually go to the Friends church.

One sister and five brothers are living. Mrs. John Helse, Joshua, Isaac, George and David all live in the Gormley district. Levi, the youngest brother, is somewhere in the west.

Mr. and Mrs. Hilts have five sons and two daughters: Harry, California, a draftsman; Charles, Toronto, an auto mechanic; Mrs. Wm. Sprague (Annie), Aurora; Mrs. Cameron Hall (Jessie), Toronto; Wesley, Detroit, working in a furnace factory; Alex., Newmarket, Office Specialty; and Alvin, Pickering College, sculptor and artist.

Naturally Mr. Hilts is proud of the work of his son, Alvin Hilts, in designing and executing the peace memorial erected by the Newmarket Veterans. Another exceptionally fine piece of work of which his father spoke to The Era was the communion table in oak at the Christian church.

"Do you consider a trade a great advantage?" Mr. Hilts was asked. "Yes, if I were a farmer, I would not be able to work now," he replied.

WITTY LADY OF 80 YEARS PASSES ON

Known for her cheerfulness, her wit and a youthfulness that belied her years, Mrs. George A. Evans died at the home of her son, Ross Evans, Lundy Lane, on Saturday in her 81st year.

Born at Sharon, Paulina Dean was a daughter of Martha Brooks and Jesse Dean, who was a very gifted leader of the famous Sharon band.

At 17 years of age she married George A. Evans, and together they farmed on the fourth of East Gwillimbury, on the farm where a grandson, Arthur Evans, farms today.

Retiring from farming, they came to Newmarket 30 years ago to make their home on Lundy Lane. Mr. Evans died 18 years ago.

Mrs. Evans had been ill about eight weeks.

Surviving are one son, Ross Evans, and one sister, Mrs. David Hughes, Toronto, only survivor of a family of six sisters and two brothers. There are also two grandsons, Arthur Evans, Sharon, and Dr. Jack Evans, Edmonton.

Mrs. Evans attended St. Paul's Church of England. Rev. A. J. Falstone conducted the funeral service at the home on Monday afternoon. Interment was at Newmarket cemetery.

Funeralbearers were Carl Vernon, Arthur Vernon, David McFall, Holton, Major James Welling, Toronto, Melbourne Haines, and Robert Lewis.

Among those from out of town attending the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. Victor Vernon, Toronto, and Mrs. David Hughes, Bolton, and their grandson, David McFall, Bolton, and Mrs. James Woods, Bradford.

Redmen Clinch Play-Off Berth In Schomberg Win

Heavy - Hitting Redmen Prove Too Much For Schomberg

By FRED THOMPSON

Paced by Charlie Cunningham, the Redmen defeated Schomberg at Schomberg on Tuesday evening by the score of 21-10.

Chuck's big bat collected three doubles and two singles, drove in six runs, and Charlie scored five himself.

This game was important, as by winning, the Redmen eliminated Aurora and paved the way for a Richmond Hill-Newmarket series for the group title and the right to meet Allandale for the cup.

The locals scored four runs in the first inning, two in the second, three in the third, five in the fourth, three in the sixth and four in the seventh and last. They combed Ken Ellison for 18 assorted bingles and these, coupled with the Schomberg boys' wildness, were good for 21 counters crossing the plate.

Bill VanZant pitched for the Reds till darkness overtook him in the last inning, when Alex.

DON'T GET SO MANY

Councillor A. V. Higginson and family have returned home from a fishing holiday at Lake Scugog. Fishing at Scugog was not as good as in other years. Mr. Higginson got three bass, his wife got four bass and their son, Victor, got two lunge, about six or seven pounds, and one bass.

Webster went to the mound and succeeded in fanning three, to end the game.

Chuck VanZant dived head-first into the bench, catching a foul fly and was unable to continue catching. Bob Peters put on the big mit and mask, while Speedy Giles took over Bob's position at first base.

Cunningham with five hits for five was the big noise at bat but Mickey Smith and Peeewe Hilton each had three for five and Joe Tunney and Webster each had two hits.

For Schomberg Bill Sutton and Ken Ellison were heavy hitters, getting four and three hits respectively, between them getting seven of the 12 Schomberg hits.

Power, Water Concessions Asked For Storage Plant

Would Rent Space To Citizens To Keep Produce

A proposal to open a refrigeration plant and a request for concessions on water and light rates, were put before a special meeting of the town council by Norman Dorland on Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. Dorland said that he had someone ready to support him financially if the town council would help him.

He would rent cold-storage lockers to the public, Mr. Dorland said. An 8-cubic foot space would rent for $10 a year. Half that size would rent for $5.

"Farm people like this convenience," said Mr. Dorland.

"They can keep a quarter of beef in their locker. And it brings them to town oftener."

"It would cost considerable to start, and it is hard to say how long it would take to make it pay."

Asked what other towns had similar plants, Mr. Dorland said that Elgin Fruit Growers in St. Thomas were doubling their storage capacity. He also named Brantford, Stratford, Thornbury, Tilbury, Kitchener, Guelph, Peterboro and Belleville.

"How will it help the town?" asked Councillor W. W. Osborne.

Mr. Dorland said that it would be a convenience to Newmarket people, as well as bringing farmers to town.

"A farmer might rent eight cubic feet to store 250 pounds of meat," said Mr. Dorland. "A town person might rent half that space for $5. You could buy berries and keep them as fresh as when you bought them. There would be a very slight change in the taste."

"How many people would you employ when you got going?" asked Mayor Dr. S. J. Boyd.

"Four or five men," said Mr. Dorland. "And I would be buying

Still Plan

Swim Pool

The swimming-pool project launched by the Newmarket Firemen is not dead. A blueprint prepared by R. T. Johnson, Canada Landscape Service, Toronto, showing a proposed layout for a swimming-pool and wading-pool in the Lions club park was discussed by the firemen at a meeting Monday evening.

This plan reveals an attractive set-up, with artistic stone-edged pools, and a continuous flow of water through a filtration plant. The cost would be less than $5,000.

property from a man who owes $500 in taxes. That would help the town too."

"I have heard the county councillors talking about getting one of these plants started at Markham on a co-operative basis," said Reeve Dr. L. W. Dales.

"I can't see town people using it," said Mr. Osborne.

"Oh yes, my wife buys a quarter of beef every winter, but there are only two months when it is possible to keep it," said N. L. Matthews, K. C., clerk and solicitor.

"You could keep a quarter of beef and a quarter of veal in a $5 box," said Mr. Dorland. "If you bring home a deer, you can have venison 12 months."

"You don't have to give it to your friends," he joked.

The council promised favorable consideration of Mr. Dorland's request and asked C. C. Rachar, town electrical engineer, to make a report.

Mr. Dorland said that where farmers organize to operate one of these cold-storage plants on a co-operative basis, the government gives them a 30 per cent grant.

Annual St. John's Garden Party Is On Wednesday

Supper, Entertainment And Good Time Promised
For All

St. John's garden party next Wednesday night on the separate school grounds promises to excel all others yet held.

Starting with a good supper at 6 o'clock, presided over by the ladies of the church, the garden party will be one long enjoyable evening.

Newmarket Citizens' band will render a program during the evening. There will be games and amusements and a grand drawing for many valuable prizes. There will also be a lucky number dodger prize, but you must be on the grounds and have your "dodger" with you to qualify.

Admission to the grounds is free and a big crowd is looked for at this big annual event.

QUEENSVILLE FARMER HAS LIVED FINE LIFE

One of North York's fine old men is John A. Wright, Queensville, whose farm is at the west as you go down the hill north of Queensville, just north of his brother George's farm.

Mr. Wright has made his own way in life, all the way, relying principally on hard work to get him ahead. His wife is no longer living, but he is rightly proud of five sons and three daughters. Mr. Wright will be 84 years old next February, and is enjoying good health, although he leaves most of the farm work now to the boys.

RURAL NUMBERS CHANGED
IN NEW PHONE BOOK

The new 1938 telephone directories will be issued on this coming Monday, July 18, and will include a number of changes and additions.

Telephone subscribers are particularly asked to refer to their new books when calling rural numbers, as these are all being changed with the introduction of "divided ringing," which will take effect on July 18.

It will be noted that all rural numbers now contain either the letter W or the letter J. grandstand over to the Salvation Army and let them make what revenue they could.

"I would like to see a grant given," said Mr. Dixon. "It is not once in 25 years that you get a band like this."

Councillor Arthur Evans suggested building a platform in sections that could be used again or elsewhere.

Dr. Dales said that he would like to see a cement dance floor built at the fair grounds.

The council agreed to give $50, provide a handstand and to allow the Army to raise whatever revenue they could from the grounds and grandstand.

Charlie Holmes Lopes Home

Easy Winner In Tomato Race

Coming out in front an easy winner in the Arden Ave. tomato derby, C. W. Holmes has had tomatoes ripe since July 9. Some of the close contenders are Ed. Brammer, Billy Wright and W. H. Brodie, but there wasn't a ripe tomato in the district outside of the Holmes garden patch as this issue of The Era went to press. H. A. Jackson and H. M. Hooker are said to be in the also-ran class.

"We have to work up interest in the fair grounds, and band music is a lot better than horse racing," said Dr. Dales.

"How big a platform is needed?" asked Mayor Dr. S. J. Boyd. "Twice as large as the council chamber," said Capt. Batten.

"That's not impossible," said Dr. Dales.

It was suggested that the council instead of giving a grant should turn the fair grounds and

Grandstand Opens Tonight

Tonight is the big night at the fair grounds. The opening of Newmarket's long-wanted grandstand will take place. Fred Orpen, Toronto, generous contributor toward the cost of the stand, and possibly his mother, Mrs. Abe Orpen, a former Newmarket girl, will be present.

The second barn has been erected, and the fair grounds present a different appearance.

After the opening ceremony, in which Mayor Dr. S. J. Boyd and the council will participate, there will be a two-hour program of entertainment.

SUMMER HAZARDS

With all its beauty and sunshine, summer takes a greater toll than winter. We don't doubt that gradually the number of serious motor accidents will decrease. Perhaps the solution will be two-lane highways, or more highways, safety devices still to be invented, stiffer driving license tests, or stricter legislation with regard to speed, recklessness or drinking, or perhaps the solution will be entirely in the education of drivers to be better drivers. Education is one of the most unfathomable possibilities with which we deal. Education can accomplish almost anything short of a miracle. More people could learn to become drivers of ability equal to that of some of the many truck-drivers who hold certificates for hundreds of thousands of miles of safe driving. Owners of fleets of trucks do not overlook education as a means of keeping down accidents. The Ontario department of highways has not overlooked this agency, but it has as yet in its publicity and advertising only touched on the possibilities of education. Perhaps this question of highway safety is more a job for the department of education than for the department of highways.

Artificial Respiration

There is another way in which summer takes a toll of life. That is by drowning. Frequently a motor-car plunges into the water, but more often there is a swimming or boating accident. In many instances the bodies of the unfortunate persons are recovered from the water within a few minutes, and yet resuscitation methods are not successful. An authoritative article in the June issue of "Health," published quarterly by the Health League of Canada, states that artificial respiration should be kept up for at least four hours or until rigor mortis sets in. This article states that a person has been revived after submersion for half an hour, although it is commonly believed that it is impossible to revive a person who has been under water for more than three or four minutes. The article says that the actual death of the human body may not take place for several hours after apparent death. The writer also cites the case of a man who had been apparently killed by electric shock, who was revived after eight hours of continuous artificial respiration. It would look as though we should all learn a little about artificial respiration before we go on our holidays.

MAIN ST. PARKING

As far as Main St. is concerned, it would look as though the next move is up to the town council. We believe that the merchants are prepared to give their moral support to a reasonable and tactful enforcement of a one-hour parking by-law, with generous exceptions to be made in favor of out-of-town people. The first step, we believe, is for the town to provide ample parking space. The space at the town hall could be roped off in parking-lot fashion. Additional space could be acquired at the former radial station lot, and Widdifield Park could be used for parking temporarily at least. An entrance and exit for motor-cars could be built easily on the Water St. side and a stairway for people leaving their cars could be provided to Timothy St. for a short route to the business section.

CONSERVATIVE LEADERSHIP

Isn't it interesting to read the biographies of the men who contended for the Conservative leadership at Ottawa? Dr. R. J. Manion, the successful candidate, was a soldier overseas when he accepted his first nomination to parliament. He left the fold of Sir Wilfrid Laurier at that time on the conscription issue, and has remained a Conservative ever since. He says there is nothing in a party name as far as he is concerned. It is what parties do that counts, according to Dr. Manion.

Why We're Pleased

There are two or three reasons why Dr. Manion's success pleases us. In the first place he wanted the leadership, whereas his principal opponent did not want it. Now it seems to us that one of the first qualifications for a job like that, leader of the opposition and possibly prime minister, is a burning desire for the opportunity. Another point that appeals to us in favor of Dr. Manion is that he is a great admirer of Abraham Lincoln. Dr. Manion speaks of himself as a "born fan." An Abraham Lincoln fan is likely to be a man of courage and idealism. It also pleases us to think that there were a majority of delegates who were big enough to vote for a Catholic for leader. That is an indication of healthy tolerance and a contribution toward national unity. It is as pleasant to read about as the recent election of a Protestant president of Catholic Eire.

Why We Would Have Been Pleased Anyway

If Murdoch A. MacPherson, the westerner, had been elected, we would also have been pleased, for he is also an easterner, born in this writer's native province of Nova Scotia, such a small province and such an old province that its sons feel as clannish as the McGregors, and as proud of their whole province as an Ontario is of his "home town." We would also have been pleased because Mr. MacPherson, like R. Hon. R. B. Bennett, (and the writer of these columns, although he doesn't collect any fat fees, but just a healthy mixture of criticism and compliments for his newspaper efforts), is a graduate of Dalhousie law school, Dalhousie University, at Halifax. In favor of Mr. MacPherson's leadership we would think that, as a man who has lived in the fresh air of the western plains, he is probably a straightforward thinker and hardly an extreme conservative. We were dismayed, however, to read that he is about to send one of his sons to Royal Military College, for it strikes us that such a choice reflects a gloomy outlook on our modern world.

Marriage As A Qualification

Another interesting point is that both of the principal contenders, and so far as we know all of the contenders, were married men. In fact, Dr. Manion states that he has made a greater success of his home life than he has of medicine or of politics. Canada has had quite an experience of bachelor leaders in the federal field, and it seems to us that, while they have brought to their tasks great energy, great ability, great scholarship, life-long training and great faithfulness, they have lacked great sympathy and have consequently failed of great accomplishment.

BOY WITH A RIFLE

The editor of the Stayner Sun is only a young man, but he recalls how when he was a boy youngsters collected birds' eggs, and traded them just as boys trade stamps, to build up their collections. He says that "the destruction of bird life must have been tremendous, yet . . . the hobby was more or less encouraged because of its educational and nature study value." The editor goes on to say that we have made "tremendous progress since those days." We appreciate more the value of our birds, and the danger of wiping them out. The editor believes that the youth of today with a rifle is a menace to wild life. We let him make his own argument. He probably begins by firing his gun within a municipality where there is a by-law prohibiting the discharging of firearms. Then he wanders farther afield and is attracted by the cawings of a squirrel which to his youthful eyes assumes the status of big game. The shot he fires may not hit the squirrel, but there is no open season for such game, so the game laws have been broken. While he wanders around trying to locate the squirrel again, a woodpecker flashes across his vision and settles on a tree to begin its rhythmic tattoo. Instinctively the gun is raised to his shoulder and in a flash another law has been broken. This is not an isolated or exaggerated picture. The actions described are commonplace where lack of knowledge prevails or where the influence of proper direction is lacking.

ZION INCORPORATED

(Contributed by Leonard Harman)

We are now camping at the small city of Zion. In a few weeks we have visited Paris, London and Rome. We spoke in the basement of the church at Lebanon. Surely we shall soon reach the New Jerusalem.

In fact, this was to have been the ideal city, built out of the wilderness north of Chicago. Forty years ago John Alexander Dowie gathered about him a group of people with very strict religious convictions and commenced to build the city beautiful. Some of these people were quite wealthy and invested tens of thousands of dollars in the enterprise. Great powers were placed in the hands of Mr. Dowie, who seems to have directed both the religious and business life of the community. Many of the business places today bear the name of "Zion Institutions and Industries Incorporated."

Dowie ruled the city with an iron hand. There could be no work nor business on Sunday. The people must maintain plain homes and clothing. There must be no drinking, no smoking, no chewing of gum. "The road to hell," said Dowie, "is paved with gum." Skeptical people, living near the city but independent of Zion Incorporated, observed that others had described a downhill road composed of a more slippery substance. But in Zion the boycott of Mr. Wrigley was maintained. The city had its church and its special schools, controlled by the religious organization rather than by the state department of education. One of the strong tenets of the people of Zion was that the earth is flat. In spite of the naughty people down in Chicago who taught that it was round, it remained flat at Zion.

The great white hotel of 365 rooms, composed entirely of wood and other inflammable material, caught fire. The inhabitants all remained in their rooms firing while firemen conquered the blaze. But a fire in the church proved of a more serious nature. That occurred after the first dictator had left this world in search of another Zion and the leadership had passed to Wilbur Glenn Voliva in 1906. There is no criticism of Dowie's sincerity; but the old weakness of dictatorship is again exemplified in the general opinion that Voliva was not above criticism.

The story is told that he greatly angered a youth of 17 by depriving the youth's widowed mother of all she had. The hot-blooded young man decided to purge the city by burning the tabernacle. Whether or not his method secured the desired results may be questioned; but he did destroy the church. This was not the only case where Voliva left people penniless. One person came to Zion with $60,000 and died without enough money to pay funeral expenses.

These actions of Voliva aroused considerable opposition but did not break his control until the depression hit Zion industries. By 1934 rebel factions in the community had succeeded in electing a school board which he did not endorse. In the following year the city council was not of Voliva's choice. But he still retains the support of two-fifths of the Zion people and he has a suite of 24 rooms in the Zion hotel and a large estate in Florida.

One more ideal community that went wrong But it is still a nice little place which may have a future as a normal, thriving town.

A WRITTEN INVITATION

The Bowmanville town council is going to write the editorial columns of the Canadian Statesman for one week and the Bowmanville service clubs are going to write them for two weeks while the distinguished editor, George W. James, president of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association, is attending the annual convention in Vancouver. Nothing would please us better than to see Mayor Dr. S. J. Boyd sit down in The Era's editorial chair for a week, surrounded by members of his council as an editorial board.

The Common Round

By Isabel Inglis Colville
ONCE UPON A TIME

We visited the land of "Once upon a time," the other night, and for a few enchanted hours, thrived in the atmosphere of make believe, which made of our childhood, a time of pure beauty.

Yes, you've guessed it—we went to see "Snow White."

As we sat waiting, it was not of the present I was thinking—I was nine years old again, and the scene—a room in a big old stone house in Perth—where I, an only child, was visiting for the summer and tasting the joy of the companionship of a houseful of cousins.

Breakfast over, while the maid washed the dishes, and Willie, the one boy cousin, filled the woodbox, we four girls were set primly on a long sofa.

"Now," said Aunt Mary, "I'll comb your hair, and tell each one what they must do for an hour or two before you go to play."

Aunt Mary was a woman of extreme neatness, and while she got the two heads which came before mine, into a state which met her ideas of what a head should look like, I partly to divert my mind from the ordeal—for my hair was long and thick, and I winced with sympathy when a protest met my ears—and partly because my eyes were drawn as by a magnet, I kept my eyes on a large, fat book which lay on the window seat near me.

"Grimm's Fairy Tales," I read on the cover, and I was just, in my mind's eye, following Snow White, as she picked flowers in the forest, when "Sit up, child, your hair is in an awful tangle," and then with the brush in one hand and my hair in the other, Aunt Mary told Edie that she must weed the onions and Mamie, my special chum, must pick the red currants.

"Now don't," she admonished them, with a slight touch of the brush on my head, "lean over the fence and talk to Minnie Hicks; you have all afternoon for that."

The girls ran off and my head was given all the attention it required. I always felt, after my hair was braided that summer, as if it was pulled back so tightly that my eyes wouldn't shut properly. "Isobel, isn't that another clean dress?" asked Auntie eyeing my brown linen with its scarlet embroidery, sternly.

"The other was wrinkled," I suggested meekly.

"Not too wrinkled to play in the yard, so off you go and change it, then write to your mother, and I want to add a word or two."

Mother has that letter yet, with Aunt Mary's postscript, "Isobel's a good girl, but wants to put a fresh dress on every day."

By this time my coiffure was finished and only Louise, small and curly-haired, remained.

I departed, hearing as I went, her walls, as a particularly tight curl was untangled, to write home, while all the time my mind was on Snow White.

I had just got the book open, when a voice said "You read altogether too much; off you go, dear, and pick the sweet peas for these vases."

So, reluctantly I laid down the book, and went off, but I managed to read and learn to love, those tales that summer, and now I sit waiting to see Snow White with the same sort of excitement, with which I followed her adventures as a child.

And from the opening scene to the closing one, there was never a moment of anything but sheer joy in the beauty of the presentation. Snow White was so appealingly lovely and the wicked Queen so splendidly wicked, that they exactly fitted into the picture retained from my childish memories of long ago.

And what a wonderful lesson these old fairy tales teach. Could any child—any normal child, watch what Snow White's love and gentleness did to the animals and birds, and not learn a lesson—badly needed sometimes—of kindness to our little friends in fur and feathers.

And I'm sure any child's sense of humor would develop with great strides as they worked and played with the seven little men.

Surely too, no sermon could emphasize more strongly that evil brings its own terrible reward, than the death of the witch queen.

There was everything we look for in our entertainment, in that simple little tale—beauty of setting and coloring, good and evil opposed to one another, as we see it in some form every day; humor of the kind that makes for real laughter, and enough pathos to emphasize the humor.

I confess I wept a few very real tears, when Snow White lay dead and the dwarfs and adorable animals surrounded her with flowers. And why not? Tears like that do one good.

I confess that ever since—and we saw it twice—that my better half and I suffer from the music—we can't get it out of our heads. Maybe if we saw it the third time, we would be able to let it go, but anyway, it is one of the few pictures I have seen that grow more vivid.

THE CHICKADEES SEE A BABY GROW UP

BY RUTH DINGMAN HEBB

"I'm simply wilted with this heat," complained Merry Chickadee to Young Chips. "Fortunately the children don't seem to feel it so much."

"I'll admit it's rather trying, but we must just make the best of it," answered her spouse. "Let's see if we can find a bird bath somewhere."

"Why, what is that down in that garden over there?" asked Merry, a second or two later. "It seems to be fluttering around as if it had been wounded or something."

"There are two boys looking at it, too," exclaimed Jimmy Chickadee excitedly. "They are going nearer to it. I wonder if they are trying to catch it, or what."

"It's a baby Nighthawk," stated Young Chips. "You can't mistake those white spots on each wing. The way he's flopping and fluttering over the ground looks to me as if he couldn't fly. Perhaps his parents managed to chase him out of the nest but couldn't get him to go any farther."

"Look at those boys!" said Merry. "They are going right up to the poor little Nighthawk and forcing him to struggle on over the rough ground. There, one of them is rushing right at him. Oh, there he has risen off the ground. Why, he's flying very nicely. But he'll probably stop a few yards away and have a rest."

"For goodness' sake," said Young Chips, "he's doing so well that he is going right on into that other field. Why, he's almost out of sight. I wonder if that's the first long flight that he has ever been on. Why, there's an adult Nighthawk watching him, too. I wonder if the youngster is hers."

"How do you do, Mrs. Nighthawk," said Merry to the Nighthawk, who was perched on a telegraph wire, not in the usual swallow fashion, but tight-rope style. "Did you see that young Nighthawk, who had been fluttering on the ground as if he couldn't fly, just get right up and fly over so far, when he was scared by those boys?"

"Indeed I did," replied the Nighthawk. "That was my own son, and you don't know how relieved I am that he is flying at last. My daughter learned very easily and is very agile and graceful with her wings, but my son seemed hopeless. We just have the two children you know. They do say girls are quicker than boys."

"Was your nest on the ground?" asked Young Chips. "Did you shove your son out of the nest and then just leave him to shift for himself?"

"Don't forget that the Nighthawks hardly have any nest at all," whispered Merry to Young Chips. "They just lay their eggs on the bare ground, and in that case there wouldn't be any place to shove the babies out of."

"As a matter of fact, although Nighthawks usually nest on the ground, we nested up on that flat gravel roof," Mrs. Nighthawk said, pointing upwards to a building. "And we did manage to get the boy down off the roof after a great struggle. But he got such a fright on the way down to the ground from the roof that he just flopped around on the ground and refused to fly again."

"Weren't you afraid he would come to some harm, helpless on the ground like that?" asked Merry.

"We certainly were, nearly frantic," said the Nighthawk. "And now those boys came along and frightened him into flying right away, just like an adult. It just shows you what can be done if one is sufficiently frightened. I certainly hope he knows enough to find his way back here, now that he has gone so far. Perhaps I had better go over there and hunt him up. Come on Twin, she called to another young Nighthawk who was flying about nearby. Let's go and find your brother and congratulate him."

"Well, now, wasn't that an interesting little sidelight on the life of the Nighthawks," commented Young Chips to his family.

"Well, even though I now realize more clearly that they are only birds, like we are, I'll still be a bit scary in the evenings when I hear them booming near me," remarked Merry Chickadee to the others. "I wonder how in the world they teach the young ones to do that trick of diving in the air, without killing themselves in the process. If they ever forget to swoop upward again, in that death-dive of theirs, it would be too bad."

POLICE COURT DRIVER GIVEN 7 DAYS JAIL, FINED

Convicted on a charge of reckless driving, Roderick Ward, Aurora, was sentenced to seven days in jail, and in addition was fined $10 and costs of $18.70, or ten days, in police court here on Tuesday. A charge of driving while intoxicated was dismissed by the magistrate. The accused pleaded not guilty to both charges through his counsel, Campbell Line.

"I was escorting 20 cars north on Yonge St.," testified Provincial Officer Howard Jackman. "The cars were carrying undernourished children. I noticed a south-bound car fairly well on the west of the side of the pavement swing out ahead of the cars in front of me. The cars swung onto the shoulder to avoid being hit. I immediately turned around and gave chase to the car, which had then gone onto the west shoulder again almost going into another car."
"I stopped the car, and then drove the accused to the doctor's in Aurora," continued Constable Jackman. "Ward was slightly unsteady on his feet and to my mind he was intoxicated. The car was travelling between 30 and 35 m.p.h. on the highway."

The Hon. Dr. L. J. Simpson, minister of education, was the next witness called.
"I was driving south on Yonge St. behind the accused," testified Dr. Simpson. "I first noticed that the dust behind the car was being thrown up and then the car went back and forth onto the shoulder of the road, then over the centre line. This continued about one mile. I felt the car should be reported, so I got out at the Newmarket corner and reported it to an officer. I continued south and I saw an officer conducting a parade turn around and stop the car, so I stopped my car also. The accused walked decidedly unsteadily up to my car and he was extremely sleepy-looking."

"I examined Ward and my conclusion was that he was not fit to drive a car," testified Dr. C. R. Boulding. "However, in my conception of drunkenness, he was not drunk."

"There is not sufficient evidence on the driving while intoxicated charge, so I will dismiss it," said the magistrate.

The defence was then given by Roderick Ward.
"We had been repairing a car and the mechanic asked me to try it out," stated Roderick Ward, the accused. "I went two or three miles up Yonge St. The steering gear was in poor condition and that was why the car was going from side to side. I had two bottles of beer before I started out with the car."

The magistrate convicted Ward on the charge of reckless driving.

After hearing the evidence last week on the two charges of driving while intoxicated and reckless driving, laid against Jack H. Cartwright, Toronto, the magistrate "received judgment for one week."

On Tuesday Cartwright was sentenced to jail for seven days on the first charge and the other charge of reckless driving was withdrawn by the magistrate.

"According to the evidence given last week I have come to the conclusion that Cartwright was so much under the influence that he was intoxicated and there will be a conviction for driving under the influence," stated Magistrate W. F. Woodliffe.

"In that case I have been instructed to put in an appeal for Cartwright by his counsel Salter Hayden," stated a member of Salter Hayden's staff.

Notice of the appeal was sent to Toronto and bail was set at $500 for Cartwright.

Charged with keeping a gambling house, George Davies, Muselman's Lake, was fined $25 and costs, or 30 days, and a slot machine seized was ordered to be confiscated.

"The machine was electrically operated and no skill was required to operate it," testified Inspector W. Brimacombe. "I put in four nickels and received nothing from the machine."

The machine was not on exhibition in the court as it would require a truck to bring it up, the constable stated.

After hearing the evidence on the charge of breaking and entering the booth at Jack English's service station, Keswick, and stealing a quantity of goods, laid against Dayton Platten, Ken. Newstead, and Eric Hall, all of Toronto, the magistrate remanded the three young boys in custody one week for sentence.

A second charge of stealing a car belonging to A. Lane, Mimico, laid against D. Platten and K. Newstead, was adjourned one week for trial. Lewis Raxlen acted as defence counsel for the three boys.

"On July 8, from information received I learned that a booth at Keswick had been broken into to the previous night," testified County Constable W. E. Martindale. "In company with Constable Morton, we proceeded west on the Lake Shore road. One mile west of Jackson's Point I observed a sedan parked on the northern side of the road. On approaching the car the right hand side door was open and a foot was out on the running board."

"On looking in the car I observed Platten asleep on the front seat, and on the rear seat K. Newstead was sleeping," continued Officer Martindale. "On searching the car I found a part box of chocolates, two cigars, a box of matches, and one part box of cigarettes. Under a tree within six feet of the car another chap was sleeping. He was Eric Hall. On examining the key case I found the name of A. Lane, Mimico, on it. I phoned Toronto and they reported a car had been stolen from Mr. Lane. On further searching the car I found a quantity of nickels and dimes and some more cigarettes. Hall asked for a cigarette but Newstead said he couldn't have one as they were required for evidence."

"I found this crank near the booth and it could have been used to break into the booth," stated Constable Morton.

"When I received my car back after it was stolen, the Jack was not in it," said A. Lane.

Convicted on a charge of reckless driving, James Kilpatrick, Toronto, was fined $10 and costs of $14.75. Kilpatrick pleaded not guilty and was represented by Lewis Raxlen.

"I left my car standing on the west side of the fourth concession of Whitelock in front of John Carroll's," testified Mrs. Luella Hennessey, Gormley. "It was dark at the time and I was in at the house when I heard a crash. I ran out and found that my car had been turned around and that it had been considerably damaged. Kilpatrick's car was stopped in front, and he told me that my lights were not on. I told him that if he would pay the damages I would not call an officer but he would not consent to this, so I called the police."

Officer Ferguson testified that the road was 30 feet wide at that point, with five-foot shoulders on each side.

"There were no lights on the Hennessey car and the night was misty," stated Kilpatrick.

"There is not sufficient evidence to convict the accused," said Mr. Raxlen. "There is a doubt in this case and the man is entitled to it."

"I have no doubt at all if a man cannot drive along a road 40 feet wide, there is evidence of reckless driving," stated the magistrate.

A charge of not paying wages laid against Harry Babbs, Island Grove, was withdrawn, as it had been filed too late, and also the plaintiff, Fred Christie, was informed it was a case for the civil courts.

On the consent of Officer McCallum a charge of unlawfully having liquor was changed to consuming and Sydney Lyles, Toronto, was fined $10 and costs of $8, or 15 days, and the liquor was ordered to be confiscated.

The officer found a jug containing wine and some paper drinking cups in a bag beside a car at Jackson's Point. Lyles admitted to the officer that the liquor was his and that he had been drinking.

Bail was set at $500 for James Cole, Toronto, charged with reckless driving and driving while intoxicated, and Cole was remanded one week.

The charges of defacing a sign laid against Arthur Lindsey, Peterborough, and Sanford Sinclair, Lindsay, were adjourned one week for judgment.

"I observed the two accused in front of a sign at the bend of the road," testified Officer Martindale. "I saw the boys working at the sign and they removed quite a portion of glass from the light. I dressed and came out of the house and the boys were breaking glass against a hydro pole, about 75 yards from the sign when I arrived."

"We were walking down the road and noticed that the glass was broken in the sign, and that some had fallen to the bottom, so we picked some up and used it for a mirror before breaking it," stated A. Lindsey.

"I would suggest that no conviction be registered against the boys," said K. M. R. Stiver. "The minimum penalty under the act is $25 but neither boy can pay as they had to hitch-hike here today. There are other witnesses if the boys had time and money to procure them."

The Western Assurance Co., speeding, $10 and costs, charge laid by Constable James Sloss.

Herbert W. Andreae, speeding, $10 and costs, charge laid by Constable Sloss.

Scanlon's Bakery, Aurora, speeding, $6 and costs, charge laid by Constable Morton.

Carl E. Campbell, reckless driving, dismissed, charge laid by Constable J. Williamson.

Ben S. Mandell, reckless driving, dismissed, charge laid by Constable Williamson.

SUTTON
JUNIOR LACROSSE
BOYS GO DOWN

The Sutton Junior Lacrosse team suffered its second defeat, in as many games, at the hands of the snappy Orangeville team at Sutton arena on Thursday, July 9, before a large crowd. The final score was 19-0.

The visiting team had a decided edge throughout the entire game, scoring on six occasions during the opening quarter adding four at the half-time mark. During the second canto Tom Hibbert in goal was replaced by Irving Prosser, but he also failed to hold off the strong offensive attacks which at the three-quarter mark totalled 15 goals.

As the final period got underway, D. Gillespie, flashy Orangeville forward, suffered a head injury which necessitated his being removed to receive medical attention, Carson Fairbairn being penalized for the remainder of the game. In the dying moments of the game, Timbeer, Orangeville forward, sprained his ankle and was given aid by Dr. O. B. Shillington.

There were five penalties during the game, three to Sutton and two to the visitors. Carson Fairbairn faces possible suspension for his part in Thursday's game when he struck D. Gillespie, receiving a major penalty.

KESWICK
W. A. PLAN ANNUAL
BAZAAR JULY 27

Rev. C. E. Fockler preached a very worthwhile sermon at the regular splendidly attended service on Sunday morning. The choir sang a special selection very nicely.

The following were received into membership with Keswick United church: Mrs. Norman King, Mrs. Byron King, Mrs. Arthur Pollock, Mrs. Ethel Morton, Mrs. G. Sturdy, and Miss Ella Hutchison. This makes 35 new members this year, which speaks well for the work of the faithful pastor.

The sacrament of the Lord's supper was observed, the church being made very beautiful by several large baskets of lovely summer garden blooms.

Mr. Fockler was also in charge of the evening service and extended a cordial invitation to all visitors in the vicinity to attend Sunday services at the United church.

Announcement is made of the annual bazaar which will be held under the auspices of the W. A. of the United church, on the lawn of the church, on Wednesday, July 27, commencing at 2.30 with a sale of fancy and useful articles, quilts, novelties, fish-pond, jams, handkerchiefs, aprons, ice cream, candy, etc. It will include as well a splendid supper, served at the regular hours and a very interesting program in the evening.

Miss Margaret Fockler is at present in attendance at a daily vacation Bible school, in the state of Pennsylvania, U.S.A. She expects to be there until the end of the month.

The newly organized Boy Scout troop had their first hike on Tuesday.

SHARON BERRY FESTIVAL HELPS ST. JAMES

A very successful strawberry social was held under the auspices of the ladies of the W.A. of St. James, Sharon, at the beautiful and spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Wilmot on Linden Lea farm, Thursday evening, June 30.

Strawberries, cream and cake were in abundance, and the tables were very attractively adorned with summer flowers. An impromptu program consisting of singing and music, rounded off a most enjoyable evening.

S. Swallow had charge of the community singing, and favored the gathering with selections from his bag-pipes and accordion. Piano instrumentalists were given by Bernice and Harry Mount; piano and guitar solos, Grace Barker; recitation, Elva Pegg; tap dance, Ruth Wilmot; piano solo, Dorothy Patterson; solos, Mrs. Walker.

The chairman, Rev. A. J. Forte, at the close of the program, thanked Mr. and Mrs. Wilmot for the use of their home, and also all others who had contributed in any way toward the success of the evening. The singing of the national anthem brought another happy gathering of St. James' congregation to a close. The efforts were well worth-while, and the net proceeds have been put to the building fund of the church.

Zephyr
On Sunday, anniversary services will be held at Zephyr United church, at 11 a. m. Rev. P. G. Powell of St. Paul's Anglican church will preach and at 7.30 Rev. F. Binnington of Caledon East. Special music will be provided for these services. On Wednesday the annual garden party will be held at Alvin Arnold's.

Supper will be served from 5 p.m. after which a splendid program by first class artists will be given. Binns and Butt in new songs and costumes, Lloyd and Cotterell comedy team, Sarnia Silverton, the accordionist, Joe Carr, entertainer and master of ceremonies, Edgar Goodaire, pianist, and others will provide entertainment. This program will be the best yet. Everyone should be on hand for this big event. The program will be amplified by loud speakers.

The United church Sunday school picnic will be held on Friday of this week at Jackson's Point.

Miss Melissa Miller has been spending the week in Buffalo, N. Y.

Sandford
The garden party of Sandford United church held at James Smith's on July 6 was a decided success in every way. The weather was ideal and lent itself to the pleasure of the social event.

The ladies lived up to their reputation for providing an excellent supper and the variety program was very much enjoyed by the large attendance. The success can be attributed to the convenient place and the hearty co-operation of all members and adherents of the congregation.

The decoration service at Sandford cemetery will be held on Sunday at 3 p. m.

FORMER N. H. S. TEACHERS MARRY

In a quiet ceremony in Hart House chapel on Saturday morning, Willa Margaret Mahoney, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Mahoney, became the bride of Carman Edgar Miller, son of Mrs. S. Rattle and the late William Miller. Rev. J. J. Ferguson officiated.

The couple were unattended. The bride wore a gown of pale gray sheer with midnight blue accessories and carried a bouquet of cornflowers and pink roses.

Immediately after the ceremony the bride and groom left to spend the summer in Muskoka. On their return they will reside in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller were both members of the staff of Newmarket high school a year ago.

RUBY BAILEY WED AT NOON TODAY

In a pretty ceremony in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Huntville, at noon today, Miss Ruby Elwyn Bailey, formerly of Newmarket, became the bride of Mr. Lawrence Ehrlich Taylor, only son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Taylor of Newmarket. Rev. William Weir of Portage la Prairie, brother-in-law of the bride, performed the ceremony, against a background of lilies, roses and delphinium, intermingled.

Mr. William Sharpe played the wedding music, and Dr. C. S. Gilbert of Newmarket, brother-in-law of the groom, sang.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white satin made on princess lines, with Queen Anne collar, the skirt extending into a train. Her veil was of embroidered tulle, arranged with a coronet of orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of Better Times roses and lily of the valley.

Miss Olive Clarkson of Newmarket, as bridesmaid, was gowned in orchid net over taffeta, with large leghorn hat, and carried talisman roses. Miss Jean Plowright, the flower girl, was frocked in green organza, with poke bonnet to match, and carried a basket of yellow flowers.

Master Taylor Gilbert, son of Dr. and Mrs. C. S. Gilbert, acted as page boy. The groom was attended by Mr. K. Scott of Newmarket as best man. The ushers were Mr. Everard Bailey and Mr. Jack Bailey, brothers of the bride.

At the reception which followed at the home of the bride's parents, Mrs. Bailey received in a gown of blue suede lace with white hat and contrasting corsage, bouquet. The bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Gilbert, also received, dressed in flowered sheer over pink taffeta, with hat to match and corsage of pink sweet peas.

Following a motor trip, the bride travelling in a paraisand suit with matching accessories, Mr. and Mrs. Taylor will reside in Sudbury.

The marriage took place quickly at the Christian church parsonage, of Hazel Mae, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Eves and Mr. Thomas Rawn, son of Mrs. Rawn and the late Mr. Ebizah Rawn of Creemore, on June 30. Rev. Dr. W. S. Alexander performed the ceremony.

Following a motor trip to Midland and northern points, Mr. and Mrs. Rawn will reside in Newmarket.

AMATEUR FIREMEN PERFORM NOBLY

Two Newmarket veterans performed a heroic deed on Wednesday afternoon and saved the fire brigade a job when they responded to an Ontario St. housewife's cries for help. Making candy on her electric stove, the lady had gone upstairs, and came down to find that the candy had boiled over and flamed up, igniting some towels and clothing hanging from a rack above.

Bill White was able to put the fire out with a well directed dose of water, but not before the contents of the rack were badly burnt up and the wall and door scorched. Meanwhile, Sidney Briece had been trying to locate a fire alarm box, but was informed that the fire was out, before the brigade was called out.

RAIN NEEDED BADLY

"Field crops so far this year are better than last year, but are feeling the effects of the continued dry weather," W. M. Cockburn, agricultural representative, told The Era this week. "We need rain badly."

"Last Friday's storm in the northern part of the country did not do as much damage to crops as was expected, as the straw was firm on account of the dry weather and for this reason stood up well under the severe storm," he said.

HOSE-COUPERS SET NEW LOW RECORD

A hose-coupling contest at the Stuart Scott school grounds on Monday evening resulted in a new low record for the last two or three years' practices by James Thompson's team.

Their time was 39 seconds for putting a stream of water through a single nozzle, uncoupling and putting the water through two nozzles on a Y.

The teams were: James Thompson's, 39 seconds; Frank Bowser, James Coltham, W. Brown, H. Boyd, F. Brammer, Leo Cull; W. W. Osborne's, 51. C. Curtis, M. Cook, H. Boyd, F. Boyd, A. Ainsley, N. Hopper; Joseph Brammar's, 53. N. Osborne, J. Gibson, W. Curtis, J. McGhee, Frank Prest, Leo Cull.

L.O.B.A. CHURCH SERVICE AND PARADE HELD JULY 3

The L.O.B.A. of Newmarket, No. 173, held their church parade on July 3. It was very successful. Rev. E. J. Sanderson had charge of the service assisted by Rev. W. S. Alexander. His text was Luke 19: 12.

The Richmond Hill band, under the management of Brother L. Saunders, made a fine showing. Visiting lodges took part, also 25 children from the True Blue and Orange Home of Richmond Hill. There were 80 on parade.

After the services, all marched to the R.S.A. hall where there were speakers. A dainty lunch was served at the conclusion.

Warriors' Day Packs Town With Activities

Sylvia Preston Wins "Miss Aurora" Title And Cup For 1938

UXBRIDGE WINS AT BALL

Action, beauty and entertainment, as provided by a program that included athletics, a beauty contest and a street dance, combined to make Saturday, the first day of Aurora's old home week, an exciting and enjoyable affair.

Mayor Dr. C. R. Boulding was introduced by Bob Westlake and made the welcoming speech at the girls' softball tournament on Saturday afternoon. Then, with Col. W. P. Mulock, M.P., pitching, Morgan Baker, M.P.P., batting, and Councillor L. C. Lee catching, the afternoon was given an official send-off under the watchful eye of the mayor, temporarily installed as umpire.

Aurora and Uxbridge mixed up in the first game. The newly formed Auroran team, with many of the girls playing in positions strange to them, was no match for the Uxbridge squad led by Jean Shannon.

Miss Shannon starred in both pitching and hitting roles and in the second Uxbridge game, played in the evening against Fisherville, they made good their claim to first place, with Fisherville second by virtue of a bye.

Jean Beckett, Marjorie McCann and Margaret VanZant pitched for the Aurora squad, with Lillian Egan catching. On the bases were Captain Evelyn Holman, Vera Beckett and Marjorie McCann. Elsie Ryan held down the shortstop position, and Kitty Bone, Moss Doane and Flora Carlyle were in the field.

The parade in the evening was led by the York Rangers huddle band and Aurora's own junior band. A smartly attired group from the Imperial Women's Veterans Corps of Toronto made quite a hit with the bystanders.

The Aurora Bicycle Club also took part in the parade. A number of lads turned out with decorated bikes, and of these Lorne Fleury was conceded best and given a prize.

The public school children had a program of races put on for them following the afternoon ball game. The winners were as follows: Girls—eight years and under: Shirley Sutton, Doris Hanson; 10 years: Jacqueline Thompson, Beverley Fleury; 12 years: Lorna Cousins, Jean Crothers; 14 years: Doris Clarke, Vanetta Maaten.

Boys—eight years and under: Bill Starkey, John Sutton; 10 years: Bill Summers, Bill Patrick; 12 years: Howard Sutton, David Ferguson; 14 years: Sam Lipsky, David Ferguson.

Mrs. H. Richards won a special race held for the veterans' wives. Another part of the program which excited plenty of interest was the beauty contest held in the evening. This event was sponsored by the Aurora Service Club, whose members had the foresight to pay a call on Miss Billie Hallam, "Miss Toronto" of 1937. Miss Hallam brought out a group of Toronto girls with her, and supervised much of the contest. She was presented with a bouquet of roses by Major Harold Breuls, on behalf of the service club.

Sylvia Preston, of Preston's Lake, won the title of "Miss Aurora," and a fine silver trophy. Other contestants were Ellen Bull, Leone Burnett, May Eley and Mrs. Bert Kidd.

The Toronto girls were judged separately and of these Delores Moon caught the approving eye of Dr. Glyn Perry, who judged the contest, and won herself a silver cake plate. Contestants in this group included Sylvia Keating, Marguerite Bowen, Violet McLeod, "Joey" Young and June Ruttan.

All the girls stayed for the street dance in the evening and proved to be popular partners. Winners of the lucky ticket draws were G. O. Wright of Ballantrae, who won an electric iron; C. R. Stickwood, Newmarket, a wrist watch; and H. E. Gilroy, Newmarket, won an electric toaster.

Bob Benville of Aurora has recently signed up with the Woodbridge lacrosse team and played his first game on Tuesday night, when they beat East York.

"Fat" James, formerly of Bradford, and Ben Brewer, of Newmarket, are two of Bob's team mates who are known locally.

Well known, too, is Charlie Rowntree, their coach. The team is gathering strength and hopes to chalk up another win when they meet East York in Toronto tonight.

HOCKEY PLAYER FINDS EMPLOYMENT IN TORONTO

Joe Tunney, who turned in such a fine job as goal-tender for the Aurora football team last winter, and who has been holding down the third sack for the Newmarket softball squad this summer, has taken a position with a Toronto team.

AURORANS LOSE OUT ON ORANGE SOFTBALL CUP

When a come-back attempt in the last half of the game failed to overcome an early three-run lead chalked up by Richmond Hill, the Aurora team lost out in its struggle, 5-7, for ownership of the cup put up for competition by the Orangemen on Tuesday.

Aurora was without the services of Hunter and Jennings, and Shatka did not turn up until the last inning. All three of the missing lads are strong hitters and their services were missed.

Ray White and a younger Shore, together with Baggs, turned in a fine job to fill in for the regulars.

After a scoreless first inning, Bennett of Richmond Hill went round to tally. He was followed in the fourth by Young, who smashed out a homer. Shropshire's three-bagger just failed to earn a run for Aurora when he went out at home plate.

Green gave Richmond Hill its third run when he came home in the fifth. Shore's good work in fanning Bennett and Young in the sixth inning went for nothing when Onesynk batted out an overthrow. Green also made the circuit to make it 5-0 for the Hill.

Things began to brighten for Aurora when Baggs, who was holding the job of catcher, bunted to first and came home on hits by Shropshire and Helmky. Shropshire managed to come home after his fine three-base hit, and the locals were only three runs down.

There was no scoring in the seventh and the Hill's two runs in the eighth were met by two for Aurora, Baggs and Helmky getting the counters. The visitors failed to tally in the ninth and Heaney sped round the bases to give the Aurorans five runs to their rivals' seven. Baggs and Shropshire got to bases and Helmky had a chance to tie the score when he stepped to bat. His hit was picked up in the infield, however, and the game was over.

Tennis players plan festivity

Star players from Toronto clubs are expected to provide the big attraction at the garden party being planned for Thursday of next week by the tennis club, in celebration of the electric lighting of the courts.

Members taking charge of arrangements include: Audrey Duffield, Mae Fry, Elizabeth Wilcox, Lees Owm and Keith Davis, on the ticket committee, and Doris Lacey, Dorothy McKenzie, Audrey Duffield, Vivian Quinn, Audrey Grieves, on the food committee.

Bob and George Hacking, Ed. March, Kenneth MacLukie, and Leonard Andrews are on the grounds committee.

The largest attendance on record was present at the communion following the morning "reunion" service held in the Baptist church on Sunday. The service was taken by Rev. Roy Essex, a former minister.

Rev. L. H. Vail, who completed a five-year pastorate in the church some 30 years ago, addressed the open session of the Sunday-school and took the evening service.

Among those who returned from outside points to take part in the service were former members from Claremont, Stouffville and Toronto. Messages from former ministers and from church workers were read during the evening service by John Dodd, clerk of the church.

In the afternoon 25 members of the church motored up to the House of Refuge on Yonge St. to conduct a service there.

Rev. A. R. Park will take both services next Sunday, after which he will leave for a four-week holiday. Arrangements have been made to supply the pulpit during his absence.

ABOUT TOWN

DUTCH CHEESE

On one of our trips across the western provinces, made some years ago, we had as a companion a native of Holland, bound on his annual bulb-selling trip across this country. The Holland he spoke of was a land of farmers and dairymen, and his comments on our own agricultural set-up were interesting.

"Where are your cheese factories?" he asked, gazing out of the smoking-car window at a large herd of cattle. Somewhere, we assured him, there were probably one or two cheese manufacturing cheese. "In Holland," he said, "there is a cheese factory every few miles."

"And where are your mills?" he enquired, with an eye on the rolling fields of wheat. We told him there were several in Manitoba and probably more in the east. "We have hundreds of them scattered among the farmers," he complacently assured me.

The Dutchman believed the country would be better served by a goodly number of small mills, situated right in the farming district. Farmers would have a supply of feeders, he pointed out, right at their door.

The farmer was prosperous then and so were the cities and no one thought to change the situation. With a growing distress in both city and country, however, there has come considerable support for the idea of de-centralizing the manufacturing centres.

Big cities, with their masses of hungry unemployed, and the farming country, without a market but with an over-abundance of food, tended to support the view. We have often thought of the Dutchman since.

CANADIAN FLOUR

We thought of him again this week when we read a brief submitted to the railway board by the Ontario Flour Millers' Association. In it, cushioned in facts and figures, we found phrases that told us why there are so few millers, and why their number is steadily decreasing.

It costs more to ship flour than to ship wheat.

It's as simple as that . . . under present railway rates it is a more economical proposition to ship our wheat across the sea and let the "foreigners" mill it, than it is to employ Canadian labor and capital in milling it and shipping it as flour.

We quote the statement prepared by the millers: "A mill not only provides employment for local labor, but is a nearby market for farmers' wheat and also provides the farmers with a cheap source of supply of mill feeds." Reduction in the amount of flour milled in Ontario in the past ten years has meant a reduction from 338,000 tons to 174,000 tons of bran, shorts, and middlings, the report states.

Canada, usually regarded as the leading exporter of wheat has, since 1932, given way to Australia, who last year trimmed us by a million barrels. The average rate, in Canadian currency, for shipping Australian wheat to seaboard is 12½ cents per 100 pounds; for shipping from western Ontario points to Montreal: 21 cents.

The Ontario millers have asked the railway board to reduce the rate to 12 cents per hundred pounds, using for guidance the fact that Argentine and South African corn is shipped from Montreal to Ontario points at a rate of 13 cents.

The Financial Post states: "Average winter wheat crop in Ontario is 17.5 million bushels. Normally, according to the Ontario Flour Millers' Association, the domestic market absorbs about four million bushels for flour purposes, the remainder must be exported either as wheat or flour, or be fed to livestock."

"Ontario millers are asking for a 12 cent rate on wheat and flour shipped to the Atlantic. They claim that this low export rate is just as necessary for them as the present low export grain rate is necessary for the west."

To better the position of both miller and farmer the rate must be changed, but according to the millers their position is the more difficult. The English miller, they state, has an advantage over the Canadian miller—in winter, of 11.32 cents per barrel and in summer, of 7.72 cents per barrel—these figures representing the difference between the cost of transporting wheat and transporting flour.

Burglars Stage Series Of "Jobs" In Town's East End

Flour Mill, Oil Companies Pillaged Early This Morning

Burglars gave the premises of the Aurora Flour and Feed Mills a thorough going-over last night, it was learned early this morning. Desks were pulled out of position, drawers yanked out and their contents strewn all over the floor.

A gaping hole appeared in the brick and plaster wall separating the office from the vault, and a rear door had been broken in. "We don't know," they haven't had time to check up yet," Wyatt Baldwin told The Era, when asked about the probable loss. Several of the oil companies along the railroad tracks had also been visited, he stated. The police were on the job early this morning.

Keith Davis took the men's "A" singles from Dr. Harold Smith, 7-5, 6-4. In the ladies' doubles, Audrey Grieves teamed with Mae Fry to defeat Phyllis Shannon and Barbara Girdwood, of Barrie, 6-4, 6-4.

Barrie got its win when Adina Seagram and Reg. Richardson combined to beat Doris Lacey and Stanley Walker of Aurora, 7-5, 7-5, in a well-fought tussle.

IRWIN-JENKINSON WEDDING IS COLORFUL CEREMONY

One of the most colorful affairs of the season, the wedding of Margaret Jenkinson, daughter of Mrs. Roy Jenkinson, to William Irwin of Carleton Place, was solemnized on Monday afternoon at the United Church. Rev. Dr. E. J. Thompson officiated.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. E. D. Warren, the bride was attractively gowned in white silk net with touches of blue and carried pink talisman roses. Misses Alice Vivian and Dorothy Warren, cousins of the bride, were senior and junior bridesmaids. Miss Vivian wore blue silk net with white accessories and carried talisman roses, while Miss Warren wore pink organdie and carried an old-fashioned nosegay.

Mr. Warren Jenkinson, brother of the bride, was best man. During the signing of the register the bride's sister, Mrs. Stanley

Newlyweds Will Live In Aurora

An interesting choral wedding took place in Toronto on Tuesday, when Agnes Mary Hearn daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Hearn, of Toronto, became the bride of John Farrar Willis, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Willis of Aurora. The marriage took place in St. Monica's Anglican church, where the bride was a member of the choir and where the groom has been organist for five years. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Frank Mason.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore white tulle lace over satin, finger-tip veil, with halo of tulle flowers, and carried butterfly-roses. Her sister, Miss Margaret Hearn, was maid of honor, and Miss Grace Willis, sister of the groom and Miss Isobel Hearn, sister of the bride, were junior bridesmaids.

Mr. Robert Willis was his brother's best man, and the ushers were Mr. George Hunt and Mr. Frank Crossman.

A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents, on Woodfield Rd. After a motor trip, Mr. and Mrs. Willis will live in Aurora. Among the guests was Mrs. Whelan, the groom's grandmother.

Stand On Guard With What? Asks Stewart

Ex-Mayor Ask Orangemen For Better Church Attendance

DEMANDS NO NEW FLAGS

"If we used our heads all year round as willingly as we use our feet on July 12, we would get some place," Toronto's ex-mayor, W. J. Stewart, C. B. E., told the crowd of Orangemen who gathered round the speakers' platform in the town park on Tuesday.

"I am not assailing Roman Catholics as individuals or for their religion," he continued. "We cherish the spirit of goodwill. Everyone has a right to worship according to his own convictions."

"I protest against the aggression on the part of the Roman Catholic church and its disintegrating influence in the province of Quebec. Our aim in Canada is for national unity, but church bells and school bells still divide our people."

"I am not one of the Canadians who is demanding a new flag," Mr. Stewart stated.

"By your non-attendance in the Protestant churches you are giving acquiescence to Catholicism," he declared. "What's the matter with you? I am not proud of some of our Orangemen. Some of them know how to pussy-foot too well. Tradition is all right, but we have to do something about it."

"Protestants, awaken!" he shouted. "Rally to the support of the Protestant churches."

"We sing 'O Canada,' we stand on guard for thee," he said. "With what? Thank God for the British navy. Canada would have been prey to a European power long ago if it had not been for the British navy."

mind of a thankless son who has no respect for his mother. He wants to know where the people of Canada stand. If he casts his eye on the Vimy Memorial, he will know where they stand. "I appreciate the fact that Dr. Manion served overseas, but why does he not embrace the Belsen policy?"

The speaker denounced belligerentism, and stated that he did not want to pay $2.50 a year to have "ici radio Canada" forced on him.

The speakers were introduced by Worshipful Master Lorne C. Lee, who brought to the microphone Mayor Dr. C. R. Boulding, who named former mayors of the town. The only one who could come to the platform was S. C. Taylor. P. M. Thompson, he explained, was driving members of the boys' band back to camp, and could not be present.

"Communities change," Dr. Boulding stated, pointing out the changes that had taken place in Aurora. "The world changes and systems of governments change. What will be the fate of democracy? It rests with the fate of the British Empire. Our place as Canadians must be as a country as closely associated with

THE OSTREKOFF JEWELS

By E. Phillips Oppenheim

A GREAT NOVEL OF LOVE AND ADVENTURE

CHAPTER 19

The Thief

There were many days during which all Wilted Haven knew of life was a tangled series of mind pictures, ministering to his comforts, but illusory — surely illusory — so that his tongue cleaved to the roof of his mouth when he tried to speak and the visions themselves kept glowing and fading before his eyes; and Anna Kastellane — she too was there — sometimes with that hurt look in her eyes, as though her very soul were bleeding, sometimes with her hair and skirts blowing fiercely around her as she clung for life to the iron ladder and passed him up the coffee which she had prepared.

Once he woke with a shout. Her eyes were ablaze into his, her lips were warm upon his own, her breath was mingled with his, the fragrance of her body about his body. * * * There were other far more horrible nights. Once he could have sworn that at the foot of the bed, his thick sensuous lips parted by that idiot grin, his blue eyes aflame, crouched Olav the Finn — behind him always that shadow, the black shadow with the gleaming knife, creeping nearer and nearer. If Olav should turn his head!

Words! He felt himself searching for flamboyant, scorching words — to keep alive the brute in his listener — so near now! That terrible blow! The soft hideous impact of steel gliding into flesh. Anna's face transformed with passion, leaning on the hilt of her knife, driving it in, the blood streaming over her.

He bent upon the clean white counterpane, tore at his face, shouted until he felt firm hands restraining him and a gentle voice in his ears. Olav wasn't there, of course! They had dragged his bleeding corpse, Anna and he, between them, the whole length of the saloon and sent it hurtling into space.

Some one was bathing his forehead with eau de Cologne. A medicine glass was raised to his lips. The opiate gleed into his veins. Once more he slept. It was on the seventeenth morning that he woke with a curiously changed feeling in his nerves and body. He raised himself in the bed. He knew quite well that those white-capped women around him were nurses, that this must be a hospital and that he was in a friendly world. He called out, feebly enough at first. A nurse, who had been standing at the window, started at the sound of his voice and came to him at once.

"Where am I?"
"In the Crozier Nursing Home."
"How long have I been here?"
"Seven days, sir."
"Is that coffee I can smell?"
"It is, and you shall have some if you lie quiet," she replied, ringing the bell. "Don't talk too much, just for the present."
He was silent for a minute or two.

"Did I bring it down all right?" he inquired.
"The plane."
"Beautifully," she told him. "Every one said it was one of the most wonderful landings they had ever seen."
"Where's the plane?"
"In Pullman Aerodrome. They had to put it somewhere out of the way."
"And I am at Crozier?" he murmured. "I played golf here once when I was a kid."
"You'll be playing golf here again very soon, if you take care of your self," she assured him.

The coffee arrived and he drank it eagerly. He even devoured the toast which they brought with it. "Now," his nurse announced, "I must go and telephone for the doctor. He said that it was important that he should see you directly you were conscious."
"So I've been unconscious, have I?"
"Most of the time."
"Did I talk a lot of rot?"
"I don't think so," she answered. "We don't listen, as a rule, to patients who talk in their sleep. Now will you please rest for a short time until the doctor comes."
"A nice thing to tell a fellow, who's been out of the world for seventeen days!" he grumbled.

Nevertheless, he felt drowsy, and he drifted off into sleep until he was awakened by the sound of men's voices in the room. He looked past the obvious doctor and stared in surprise at the gray-haired, kindly faced man who came toward the bedside with outstretched hands.

take charge of my patient now. He can see you again later in the day, Mr. Haven."

The latter departed. The doctor's examination was long and searching. When he had finished, he leaned back in his chair with an air of relief.

"You are going to be all right, young fellow," he pronounced. "Constitution of an ox."

"Can I have anything to eat?" his patient demanded.

"Anything in reason. Go quietly for a day or two. You went through a mighty strain. I should think, in that airplane of yours."

"Things happened there," Haven admitted.

"Be sensible then," the doctor begged. "Don't talk much and don't see any one else for a few days. There are some reporters hanging about the town. I've been asked to give you the tip. Don't have anything to do with them. It's added impressively. 'The chief constable is going to have a word with you — some time tomorrow. I expect — and the Intelligence Department want to send some one down. You came pretty well straight from Russia, didn't you?'"

"All the way."

"You drove yourself without a stop?"

Haven shook his head.

"Not quite," he acknowledged. "The doctor held out his hands. 'I beg your pardon,' he said. 'I'm breaking my own rule. No questions. I'll see you later in the evening.'"

From what he afterward remembered of that day, it seemed to Haven to have been a carouse of food — light enough in quality, but his appetite was prodigious. Then came sleep. * * * He woke at 8 o'clock, feeling almost ready to spring out of bed. The nurse brought him some tea, after which he lit a cigarette.

"Nurse," he said, "when I arrived, I had a satchel locked to my wrist by a chain. I didn't," he interrupted himself. "No—I forgot. It was in the plane. I took it off so that I could fight Leon. Still, there was a satchel," he went on, looking around the room. "It had a brass plate with 'American Embassy, St. Petersburg' stamped upon it. Then there was a dark brown chamois-leather belt around my body."

The nurse nodded.

"I dare say," she assented indifferently. "I wasn't here when you were admitted. All your belongings, though, would be very carefully looked after."

"I'm sure they would," he agreed, his eyes still, however, searching the room. "All the same, I shall ask the doctor whether I can have them brought here. You see," he explained, "they were the cause of my adventure, and it was some adventure, can tell you. I had two dear friends in St. Petersburg and I swore before God that I would bring into this country whatever they entrusted to me. At times I thought I was beaten. At times it seemed impossible to succeed. But we did it in the end. We got through. Do you mind one more question?"

"I don't approve of it," she murmured.

"About the young lady who was with me? I thought perhaps she might have been in to see me. Is she here?"

"I really don't quite know," the nurse replied. "She was here a few days ago—a very beautiful young lady, she was—of a kind of foreign appearance. Spoke English as well as you or I, but with an accent as though she had lived abroad."

"Yes," Haven asserted. "She was Russian, as a matter of fact. I hoped that she might be here."

"I'll ask Matron if she is coming back," the nurse promised; "or the doctor would be certain to know."

Haven was only half content. His possessions, here in this nursing home were, without doubt, safe enough, and their removal was, naturally, only a matter of routine, but he wanted them. He wanted to feast his eyes upon them, to feel the glow of his accomplishment. And Anna—Anna Kastellane! He closed his eyes as he thought of her. Some one or other, it seemed to him that the supreme moment of his life would come when the door opened and she stepped in. Presently the nurse left him alone, more than once he heard voices upon the landing, and at last there was a familiar step upon the staircase. His father entered, followed by the doctor.

"Feeling fine," Haven declared, in answer to the latter's inquiry. "There are just one or two questions."

"Wait a bit," the doctor interrupted, glancing at his chart, and thrusting a thermometer under his arm. "I've had enough of these premature recoveries," he went on, "you're as strong as they make 'em, but the worst of you lusty young fellows is that the moment you feel your strength returning after an illness you want to do too much. Everything will come, and pretty quickly, too, in your case. What are you in such a hurry about? Do you want to get into what's left of the war?"

"I'm thinking of it," Haven confessed. "I don't fancy I'm a brilliant success in diplomacy. Guess I'll feel myself in disgrace when I get to Carlton House Terrace."

The doctor drew out the thermometer, looked at it and smiled. He felt the patient's pulse and smiled again.

"You'll do," he announced. "How would you like a few newspapers?"

"Later," Haven assented. "Just now there are one or two questions. I can't help it. Nurse doesn't know things."

STORY OF MOUNT ALBERT
WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

By MRS. H. W. HALL

The following article is a concise history of the Mount Albert Women's Institute, of the formation and development which followed afterward for the past 30 years.

In 1899 there was a prosperous institute in the town of Uxbridge, Ont., and through the influence of their officers brought literature to a sister of one of their number, Mrs. J. Cleverdon, and also to Mrs. W. H. Thompson and Mrs. W. Ferguson. The sister, Mrs. Cleverdon, wrote to Mr. Creelman, superintendent of the department at Ottawa, for instructions to organize a branch here and his reply was to invite the York county officials, honorary, Mrs. C. Doan, Miss Starr, Mrs. Clubine, whom Mrs. J. D. Rowland invited to bring two speakers from the department at Uxbridge. These two speakers were Miss Laura Stephen Rose and Miss B. Miller of McDonald Institute. Miss Rose's subject was "One eye on the field, the other on this town," and Miss Miller's subject was "What is a woman worth?"

And those able addresses were well-defined, leaving a deep impression on the large attendance of ladies that listened. Afterwards a nominating committee was appointed and the following officers were elected: pres., Mrs. J. D. Rowland; vice-pres., Mrs. B. Paisley; sec.-treas., Mrs. Scott Cronin; district director, Mrs. L. Toole; branch directors, Mrs. J. Cleverdon, Mrs. N. Thirsk and Mrs. Powell; pianist, Mrs. Theaker; soloist, Miss L. Terry; program committee, Mrs. Janson, Mrs. Barrett, Mrs. E. Crosby.

And a rich perennial it has proved, changing its form whenever moved, yet always full of homely grace, and filling the need of each new place, its fragrant blooms enrich the land, helping our women understand and when we take a retrospect of the past 30 years and see the milestones of achievement which have marked the progress of its advance, we are given courage to continue, for at no time since it was organized have we been faced with greater need for unselfish action than at present.

We cannot imagine any other organization lasting with ever increasing inspiration all through the past 30 years, and five years ago we celebrated the first quarter of a century of its history. Our guest speaker on that occasion was Miss E. Guest, who is widely known.

The writer of this had the honor of being a chartered member and one of its first directors at the beginning and took all responsibility of the giving of her home for all meetings at that time and entertained the government speakers sent out by the department of which there were many notable speakers, including Dr. Margaret Patterson, Mrs. Lewis, Dr. Smilie, Dr. Bachus, and many more famous ladies who all have made life history of the most thrilling interest, and we must measure our work on the sides where it projects into eternity. The secret of its success has been co-operation and every member doing her part under strong capable leadership, for in the year 1914-15 we held the honor of having the largest membership in York county.

There was no class, church or national distinction drawn, its aim and object being dissemination of knowledge, and the advancement of Christian living. Its objectives were helpful, and the subjects for discussion were unlimited, and we were strong in the conviction that Canada can establish the complete Canadian home.

"Yes, I remember the channels belt," the doctor remarked. "I took it off myself."

"I should like them brought into this room," Haven begged. "In fact, I should like them in bed with me. It sounds foolish, but I know," he went on, turning to his father, "but as you can guess I've had an adventure—one that I shall never forget. I had two dear friends in St. Petersburg—you've heard me speak of them—Prince and Princess Michael Ostrekoff. They trusted me with the contents of that belt and the embassy bag, and I brought them through, my God! * * * Never mind, I brought them through. I want them here while I live and think about it. And did the girl? Anna Kastellane?"

"I thought I should have seen her by now. Where is she?"

The doctor glanced questioning at Norman Haven. The latter hesitated.

"My dear boy," he said, "it's all right, of course, but, naturally enough, while you were unconscious no one here understood the position. Miss Kastellane waited about for several days until the doctor pronounced that you were out of danger, then she hired a car and went away to her friends. She was going to telephone."

"And she didn't?" Haven asked anxiously.

"We haven't heard from her since," was the reluctant reply.

"And the satchel? My belt?" Haven insisted, with a sudden horrible presentiment.

His father frowned.

"She appears to have taken them with her," he acknowledged. "The matron here — every one — understood that they were her property."

adian home.

The success of our efforts has been attained by carefully choosing our leadership, as there is no more important place than what we call our home. Our country then is next in rank, no matter where we roam. Our motto then is plainly seen without our glasses on, when finding out a helpful thing, to pass it right along.

During all those years, many changes have come to our W. I. in losing many valuable members through death and many more have moved away. Our meetings are held in the homes of the members, excepting the annual and a yearly banquet for our men, held in the United church basement. Mr. Robertson, Mount Albert's police trustee, had the honor of presenting the toast to our Institute in his jovial, capable manner, after which a program was given by the local talent in the community. We included in our programs, debates, demonstrations, community singing, vocal and instrumental music and in addition, from time to time, we invited clergymen, doctors, lawyers, merchants, bankers, nurses and dentists to give us instructions on the different professions.

In 1914 we gave $100 to the Mount Albert library and took the responsibility of caring for, and replenishing it with new books. Afterwards it became self-sustaining except for donations given it. It has become a valuable help for our younger people in our town and country under its own leadership.

Our Institute gave $200 toward a memorial gateway for war veterans and bought a piano giving $200 for it, to instruct pupils who had talent.

We also gave $100 to buy land for a driveway into the park and during the world war, our main objective was Red Cross work, giving aid when possible to all departments in need, donating articles of clothing, knitting and money, and in raising this money we held garden parties, teas, socials, concerts and oyster suppers. Subscriptions were also taken.

Our Institute helped in cleaning up several old cemeteries. The money for this work was raised by having baking sales. First aid kits were also put in the schools. We canvassed votes for the temperance referendum election and helped to support a doctor in the north country and helped with schools there, gave money to the flooded area, and also the north west dried out area. A consignment of groceries and clothing were sent to the latter. We also helped to pay the salary of the music teacher in our several schools.

And in 1930 conveners were appointed for the different departments, health, research, relief, education, agriculture, community activities, Canadian industry and the conveners for each put on one meeting a year, giving interesting and instructive programs.

One of our presidents, Mrs. W. R. Steeper, organized a Junior Institute branch and they are doing good work for home and country. They helped to support a not in the hospital at Weston, which was built when our Women's Institute was organized and under much discussion last year.

We hold the honor of helping to retain and keeping our pledge given when it was built by having our district director and our secretary treasurer visit that hospital last year and Mrs. B. Sinclair reported at the district convention by giving a valuable address on its behalf after seeing the humanitarian side of the work done there for the forgotten child. When a vote was called she voted to retain it.

Our Institute has done work in looking after the distressed and needy and much praise is due to the relief committees of this department, namely Mrs. W. Robertson, Mrs. Stokes, Miss Hayes, Mrs. I. Morton and several others. The sick have been cheered by personal visits, flowers, fruit, cake, candy, quilts and clothing.

Letters of sympathy have been sent to the bereft ones and last but not least, our Institute have not forgotten the grandmothers in our midst and the early pioneer ladies of our Institute, who have made past history but have moved from our village. I refer to our first president, Mrs. J. D. Rowland, and to Mrs. E. Crosby, Mrs. G. Janson, Mrs. Barrett, Mrs. H. Shields and Mrs. H. Ramsden. Thus we are proud of the unity that has bound us together, this love of freedom found in Canada.

There are many more things accomplished by our W.I. beside what is herein mentioned. Many courses were taken in teaching, sewing, cooking and buying and several others. Each in itself a great subject and the capital we invested for this organization, education for efficiency and loving service has paid in large dividends all through the intervening years and we see some of the practical results of our efforts under the valuable leadership of the following:

President: Mrs. J. D. Rowland, Mrs. V. Brooks, Mrs. G. Janson, Mrs. E. Crosby, Mrs. E. Rowan, Mrs. W. Steeper, Mrs. R. Gray.

Mrs. C. Davidson, Mrs. J. Lawson, Mrs. J. Leek, Mrs. G. Burnham, Mrs. A. Dunn, Mrs. D. Stokes, Mrs. B. Sinclair, Mrs. H. Pearson, Mrs. H. Price.

Secretary-treasurers: Miss E. Theaker, Mrs. S. Jones, Miss E. Summerfield, Miss M. Rear, Mrs. H. Shields, Miss L. Cook, Mrs. W. Steeper, Mrs. Russell, Mrs. H. Pearson, Miss E. Lapp, Mrs. L. Humphreys, Mrs. J. Crowle, Miss M. Dike, Mrs. J. Slorack, Mrs. B. Sinclair.

Some of the above mentioned filled the same office several years, for a true leader is hard to find, for a woman's heart should go out to human need throughout Canada and the whole world.

And there are many musicians who have made our programs most interesting by their talents of song, namely:

Mrs. Johnston, Miss Vera Hogg, Miss Terry, Miss L. Leek, Miss G. Walton, Mrs. J. Taylor, Miss E. Theaker, Mrs. E. Rowen, Miss Stiver, Mrs. R. Holborn, Mrs. B. Stiver, Mrs. O. Tinsdale, Mrs. N. Carruthers, Mrs. E. Haigh, Miss Steeper and the two Misses Ross, Mrs. Leadbetter, Mrs. C. Davidson, Mrs. Y. Smith, Mrs. Sinclair, Misses Sinclair, Miss M. Draper and Mr. Oscar Robertson, who generously gave of their talents to contribute their part in making our programs a success in social entertaining, for there is a destiny which makes us sisters and brothers for none takes his way alone, for all we send into the lives of others comes back into our own.

And in summing up the past 30 years' work we feel the meetings were profitable and pleasant and time well spent. In closing I'll repeat a message by one of the Brides of Confederation sent to the women of Canada in 1867, in the person of Lady Tilley, telling us to be strong for we have come to our Kingdom for such a momentous time, for Canada will have to be the melting pot of the nations of the world and the rural women have certainly made history in the past 38 years.

MOUNT ALBERT EDUCATIONIST WAS MT. ALBERT BOY

W. J. Sisler, an old Mount Albert boy, who taught hundreds of New Canadians the English language, has retired as principal of Isaac Newton high school, Winnipeg, after 34 years' service.

Mr. Sisler is the son of the late Eli Sisler, a former Mount Albert resident. He was born in Scott township, Ontario county, and left there in 1905 to begin teaching in a North Winnipeg school, where most of his pupils knew no English.

He evolved a teaching system which is now in general use in Manitoba and received substantial royalties for his book on the subject. Mr. Sisler trained 200 teachers in the system and conducted a night school for pupils above school age.

"I could have left the district," said Mr. Sisler in a recent interview, "but the people and their problems became my prime interest. Most of our own people at the time did not understand them. I liked them and tried to help them."

"The children were not given plain language lessons," Mr. Sisler added. "They were encouraged to talk about things they knew and saw. Details of their everyday life formed the basis of the plan."

When Landing Was A Busy Town, Recalled By Visitor

Business Improvement In Fall Predicted By U. S. Visitor

Days when Holland Landing, the oldest village in Ontario, was a thriving community, were recalled this week by Thomas E. Gray, of Concord, New Hampshire, who is a guest of his sister, Mrs. Annie Ough, Newmarket.

Another brother, George, of Winnipeg, is also visiting Mrs. Ough. Only the two brothers and one sister survive of a family of seven boys and two girls.

Mrs. Ough's daughter, Mrs. Robert Helmer, Haileybury, is also at home at the present time.

Thomas Gray is a pressman with the firm that prints among other publications the Reader's Digest, of which 2,700,000 copies are printed each issue.

"There is a little pick-up in business in the U.S.," said Mr. Gray. "The excess profits tax held things up for a bit. The big fellows did not like it. It has been modified and they are satisfied now that they have to get from Roosevelt. You folks over here ought to feel the reflex of improved conditions by fall."

Newmarket wasn't an awful lot bigger than Holland Landing in the eighties when Mr. Gray was a boy. He was born in 1875. But the death knell of Holland Landing had been sounded back in the fifties, he said, when the railway passed by.

"When the first train went through there was a wire from Toronto asking: 'Has that engine of destruction reached the Landing yet?'" Mr. Gray related. "The answer was: 'Yes, it went crashing and roaring through here at 12 miles per hour.'"

Holland Landing in the days of Mr. Gray's boyhood had a grist-mill, two tanneries, three hotels, a saw-mill, two lime-kilns, a blacksmith shop, a carpenter shop and a cooper-shop, making hundreds of barrels for the Newmarket flour mills, Mr. Gray related.

"In football we used to get along all right with Newmarket, but we always had a fight when we played Bradford," he recalled.

steamer rug while another group presented a purse of money. Other lovely gifts were received which showed the respect and feeling of the community toward the popular bride-to-be.

Miss Cooke sails next week for England where she will marry Mr. Jack Culverwell, a former Sutton boy. Her friends wish her happiness and godspeed on her journey from their midst and for her future.

SEVENTH CON. N. G.

Miss Jennie Brown, who recently graduated from Dufferin St., Toronto, domestic science training school, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Brown.

Hearty congratulations are extended to Robert Brown who passed in every subject in his first year at Sutton high school. Bob came ninth in his class of 34. He made the trip daily from his home which was over six miles away.

When possible he made it on his bicycle, but in extremely cold weather or when the roads were icy and bad, he walked. His fifteenth birthday, March 8, was celebrated with one of his usual trips.

Mrs. J. Hamilton, who has been very ill, is improving. Best wishes are extended to her.

Miss Isabel Hamilton is home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hamilton. Isabel attended school in Toronto last term.

Mrs. E. Miller visited at her father's home on Sunday at Baker Hill.

Levi Ley purchased a mare and colt this week.

Mr. Smith will be in charge of services for the next seven Sundays at Mount Pleasant. Every effort should be made to help with the Sunday school.

CAROLINAN WILL BE SPEAKER

Rev. Francis C. Anscombe of Salem College, Winston Salem, North Carolina, will preach at Pine Orchard next Sunday at 11.15 a.m., standard time. Mr. Anscombe preached at Pine Orchard many years ago and his many friends will be glad to hear him.

COUNTIES PLAN REFORESTATION DAY

At a meeting of the reforestation committees of York and Ontario counties, held in Stouffville last Thursday, a field day was planned for Aug. 17. The gathering will take the form of a meeting at Vivian, with lunch and addresses by Col. W. P. Mulock and Morgan Baker, M. L. A., followed by a trip through the reforested areas, and a banquet at Uxbridge in the evening.

Reeve Jas. Rennie of Markham, Reeve W. H. Pugsley of Sutton, and Supt. Richardson, of the Ontario Department of Reforestation were named a committee.

Among those attending the meeting from North York were Reeve Bert Knowles of Aurora, Reeve Jess Cook of Whitechurch and Reeve A. E. Weldon of Stouffville.

MANION AS SEEN

take care of the extras," said Dr. Boyd.

"If there were highways all over the dominion, equally as good as those of Ontario, the railways would have very little business," said Dr. Boyd. "The railways will be a bigger liability as time goes on. They will have their usefulness for heavy freight, but trucks will gradually cut into the railway business."

"The kindly references made to Mr. Bennett by the different speakers were touching. Towards the last Mr. Bennett got out entirely."

"One man said to me: 'We are trying to pick a man who will hold this country together. There is danger of disintegration.'"

"Dr. Manion was the logical choice. He was the first speaker and after he finished his address in English, he spoke to the Quebec delegation in French. They went mad with enthusiasm."

"MacPherson was the last speaker. He was introduced by two Mr. Smiths. One was from his place of origin, in Cape Breton, and the other was from the west where he is now. MacPherson was a fearless speaker, like Meighen, but he was not the man for leader. He didn't care for Quebec or anybody else."

"Everybody at the convention was strong for British connection. The French-Canadians were strong for British connection. I like the French better now. I understand them better."

J. O. Little, who went to the convention as a spectator, not a delegate, had a similar story to tell. Mr. Little spent a good deal of his time with one of the French delegates, and got a pretty good understanding of Quebec politics.

"I am pastmaster of an Orange lodge, but we don't want any talk in this country of a man's religion," said Mr. Little. "I have favored and supported Manion for the leadership for a long time. He is a man of the people, and he understands the French people. He won his M. C. overseas while I was at home making money."

"Manion is a silver tongued orator. The words just flow from him. And he is the sort of man who stops and talks to you."

Mr. Little had two interesting personal experiences. One was when Hon. Leopold Macaulay, Ontario Conservative house leader, met him in a corridor at Ottawa and called him "J. O.", although they had only met once before, and then only for a moment. Mr. Macaulay said he had been watching Mr. Little's career as a warden and remembered him particularly because he looked like George S. Henry.

Another experience was when Hon. "Bob" White, Montreal, dean of the senate, asked him if he were Tom Little's son, and recalled when he was a candidate 50 years ago in what is now part of Peel and recalled old family names around Mono Mills and district.

Need for good feeling between French and English-speaking people was stressed by Mr. Little. "We think things of the French which are unfounded, and they think things of us which are unfounded," he said. "We do not want anyone stirring up trouble between the races."

BURNS BURNED
They fled in terror to the cottage next door, which was torn apart just after they entered when another tree fell upon it.

Its occupants, the family of Emilio Longo, Toronto, owe their lives to the fact that they had rushed to the rear door to see what had happened to the cottage just vacated by Mrs. Chalmers and friends.

"I had rushed to the door of our cottage with my three-year-old boy in my arms, to shut the porch windows," Mrs. E. A. Robinson, Newmarket, stated. "I just got there in time to see the tree fall on the Taylor cottage. I knew my little girl was sitting right underneath. It was a miracle they escaped."

Less than 100 yards from the Taylor home, the cottage occupied by Dr. Wilfred C. Everist and family of Toronto, was torn open as another falling tree, uprooted by the blast, fell. The Everist family had left but a few minutes before to do their weekend shopping in Newmarket.

"We were in our place 30 feet away when the tree fell onto the Everist cottage, and we didn't hear a thing," stated Frank Giffin, Newtonbrook florist. "The wind was blowing so strong and there was so much other noise, we didn't hear the cottage collapse or two other trees fall nearby."

One corner of the kitchen roof and walls of the cottage of Kenneth and Neil Ostrander, Toronto jewellers, was ripped open by a swinging tree.

At the home of T. Marsden on the beach, a huge elm tree, nine feet in diameter, cut the cottage in two as it crashed through the roof. There was no one in the house at the time. Two more houses 50 yards south were totally smashed when another huge elm, 200 feet tall, toppled and brushed the cottages away with its branches.

A boathouse attached to the cottage of G. DeEstrada was lifted bodily and dropped in the same spot at right angles to its former position. The cottage was struck by two pine trees as they were uprooted, causing damage estimated at $300.

"I imagine it was a tornado," G. Longley of Montreal, who was in the Chalmers' cottage said, "it came up just like a thunderstorm about 5 o'clock. We were watching the rain from the cottage. All of a sudden the cottage started to heave into the air on the north side. Then the wood started to splinter."

"My car was standing out in front," Mr. Longley said, "and a tree fell on it—not the one that heaved the cottage up. The car was demolished. The man in the cottage behind lost his too."

Telephones were out of order for hours and lighting was not available in many places until the next day.

Eight heavy cedars fell at the cottage of Dr. J. C. Edwards, Newmarket, at Pine Beach, but did not touch the cottage.

Army Worms Reported In County, Farmers Warned

Agricultural Representative Tells How To Deal With Menace

Farmers in the Unionville district reported an outbreak of army worms to the local agricultural office on Wednesday morning.

W. M. Cockburn, the representative, immediately got in touch with Prof. A. W. Baker of the Ontario Agricultural College, who has been directing the control measures for similar outbreaks in the Pickering district.

Prof. Baker spent yesterday afternoon with Mr. Cockburn in the section north of Unionville, particularly on the farms of Col. F. H. Deacon and Ernest Appleton.

Last evening an army of neighbors turned out to assist in mixing and broadcasting a poison mixture in the affected grain crops. Mr. Cockburn speaking to the group later urged all farmers of the county to look over their corn and grain crops in the early evening for any dark-colored striped-backed caterpillars up to about two inches in length.

"These worms for the most part hide in the daytime under rubbish, weeds, etc., Mr. Cockburn said, and start to move out and feed in the late afternoon. Where worms are present, green sawdust-like droppings will be found on the ground and the leaves will be eaten off the stems."

Every outbreak where the worms are present in menacing numbers should be reported at once to the agricultural representative here at Newmarket. He will be in the fields every day but can be reached by phone.

Early application of control measures is very important. A mixture of 25 lbs. bran, 1 lb. paris green (be sure to use paris green), one-half gallon molasses and 2 to 2½ gallons of water is enough to treat two acres of open land or about one acre of spring crop land.

YOUTH LOSES FINGER

Getting his finger caught in a hay-lifter, Harold Ellis, son of George Ellis, Queensville, had to be taken to York county hospital Wednesday afternoon. Dr. S. J. Boyd was called. It was found necessary to remove the finger.
